Eric D. Belcher Joins InnerWorkings as Executive Vice President, Operations

Chicago, IL June 20, 2005

Steven E. Zuccarini, Chief Executive Officer of InnerWorkings, is pleased to announce that Eric D. Belcher has joined the company's management team as Executive Vice President, Operations.

In this position, Belcher will oversee all service delivery functions, supply chain management and InnerWorkings' certified supplier network. "Eric's experience and leadership will be a key addition to our management team," said Zuccarini. "This position will help insure our ability to continuously exceed clients' expectations on service and value and to be the industry leader in innovation and client satisfaction."

Previously, Belcher was Chief Operating Officer for MAN Roland Inc., where he oversaw sheetfed operations throughout North America. Prior to assuming that post, Belcher served as Chief Financial Officer of the company. He joined MAN Roland in 2001 after serving as a Senior Manager at Marakon Associates, an international management consulting firm that assisted major corporations in developing business strategies to maximize growth and profit potential. In addition to his operational, strategic and finance background, Belcher has significant sales and marketing experience. Before joining Marakon, he worked in sales, sales management and marketing for the E & J Gallo Winery. Belcher holds an MBA from the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business and a Bachelor's degree from Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania.
